COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course will survey the artistic, literary and political history of The Weimar Republic. Germany in 1918 was a traumatized and defeated country, yet it was still a young one: as a unified nation, it was less than fifty years old and still searching for its identity. The loss of the war had toppled the country's monarchy and initiated its first experiment in democracy. The Republic, which lasted until 1933, has come to be known as The Weimar Republic, because its first leaders convened in the quiet city of Weimar, which was safer than Berlin, where violent street clashes among disillusioned war veterans, Communist revolutionaries, and right-wing, pro-monarchist militarists often impeded the normal functions of government. Although the Republic experienced severe political and economic instability throughout its relatively brief life, and was ultimately undermined by Adolf Hitler's exploitation of democratic freedoms, it is remembered as a golden age of European cultural life: Wilhelm Furtwängler, Martin Heidegger, Fritz Lang, Mary Wigman, Paul Hindemith, Walter Gropius, Bertolt Brecht, Lotte Lenya, and Marlene Dietrich are but a few of the many creative figures who produced their most significant work in Germany during this period. Extraordinary developments were not confined to the arts but were experienced in social, sexual, technological, scientific and political thought as well. In the realms of film, music, philosophy, theatre, graphic design, dance, fashion, and architecture, the products of the Weimar Republic continue to fascinate and exert influence on creative minds today. As Eric D. Weitz has written recently: "Weimar Germany still speaks to us;" this course will consider why.

Taught in: English

Knowledge of the German language is not required, but students with German are encouraged to read texts in the original. Students with more advanced German writing skills are encouraged to submit their written assignments in German. (A reasonable number of grammatical and orthographic errors in German will be remarked but will not count towards the grade; however, an excessive number of errors will require the student to re-write the assignment in English.)

Learning Goals:

Areas of Inquiry: Arts and the Humanities. Such courses meet either or both of the following:

- Analyze arts and/or literatures in themselves and in relation to specific histories, values, languages, cultures, and technologies.
- Understand the nature of human languages and their speakers.

Grading:

Students have a variety of chances and means to ensure a good grade for this course. Grades will be based on the following:

- | | |
|------------------------------|------------|
| • written assignments | 30% |
| • participation*: | 20% |
| • midterm exam: | 25% |
| • final exam: | 25% |

(*defined as regular attendance to class, active involvement in class discussions, and evidence of having read assigned texts)

Grade distribution:

A=90-100%; B+=85-89; B=80-84; C+=75-79; C=70-74; D=65-69; F=64 and below

Requirements:

Students are required to:

- write one (minimum five-page) research paper with bibliography;
- read all assigned texts thoroughly;
- attend class in a timely manner: 3 tardy arrivals will equal one absence;
- participate in classroom discussions;
- give evidence on mid-term and final exams of their knowledge of key points made during the course.

Attendance:

All students must attend regularly and arrive prepared. Those who miss more than two class sessions without a compelling excuse (a doctor's or college dean's note, for instance) should expect a one-step reduction in the course grade (i.e. an A becomes a B+, a B+ becomes a B). Three late arrivals count as one absence. Note: It is the responsibility of students who have been absent (for any reason) to find out what they have missed and obtain materials that may have been handed out.

Required Texts:

There is no textbook assigned for this course, but students are expected to read, in their entirety, the following works:

Weimar Culture: The Outsider as Insider by Peter Gay (ISBN-10: 0393322394 ISBN-13: 978-0393322392) *

Death in Venice by Thomas Mann (ISBN-10: 1453875263 ISBN-13: 978-1453875261)*

Storm of Steel by Ernst Jünger

Steppenwolf by Hermann Hesse (ISBN-10: 0312278675 ISBN-13: 978-0312278670)*

Drums in the Night by Bertolt Brecht.

*Available at the Rutgers Bookstore. All other texts will be placed on reserve at the Alexander Library.

Selections from The Weimar Republic Sourcebook by Anton Kaes, Martin Jay, and Edward Dimendberg will be on reserve at the library and portions will be assigned periodically. Students will also receive a variety of shorter texts in photocopy form.

Online course materials:

Please note that our course will have its own website on <https://sakai.rutgers.edu/portal>. You can log on using your Net ID and password. If the course does not appear as one of your tabs, please search and add it or contact me and I will grant you access. Some of the reading will be available via Sakai and you are required to print and bring those readings to class on the scheduled days as part of your class participation grade. Please check Sakai frequently for updates, announcements, and resources. You can also communicate with your classmates via Sakai in the Chat Room or pose questions in the Forum. Online materials may also be available through library online reserves. Please go to http://www.libraries.rutgers.edu/rul/lib_servs/course_reserves.shtml and log in using your Net ID and password. You can then search by Instructor, Course Number, or Course Name.

Plagiarism:

Plagiarism is an extremely serious matter, and can lead to a student's failing the course and being referred to his or her dean for disciplinary action. When referring to ideas other than your own, always acknowledge your sources clearly and completely, whether you are quoting or paraphrasing. Please see the University's policies on academic integrity at <http://teachx.rutgers.edu/integrity/policy.html>, and discuss with your instructor any questions you may have about this and related issues.

Final Exam: In class, Thursday, April 28

Disability Support Services:

Students who may be requesting accommodations due to disabilities are encouraged to familiarize themselves with procedures and policies regarding disability support services at the following website: <http://disabilityservices.rutgers.edu/>. It is recommended that students seeking accommodations begin filing paperwork as soon as possible as the documentation review process may take up to 30 business days. Students are encouraged to speak with teachers about these issues at the beginning of the term. All such conversations will be kept strictly confidential.

Cell Phones:

Cell phones and all other technological devices (beepers, iPods, MP3players...) must be turned off during class out of respect for the instructor and fellow students. Please schedule all important phone communications outside of class time.
